HALF PAST 3 O'CLOCK, P. M. The Convention re-assembled at half past three, Hon. Asa Biggs in the Chair. The Committee on the permanent organization of the Convention, reported through Mr. Wright, of Cumberland, Hon. A. RENCHER, of Chatham, as President of the Convention. Mr. Reacher was unanimously chosen President of the Convention, and was conducted to the Chair, by Col. J. B. Jones, of Currituck, and C. G. Wright, Esu., of Cumberland; whereupon he addressed the Convention as follows:

Gentlemen of the Convention: I accept with pleasure the post which your kindness has assigned me, and I should be equally unjust to myself and unworthy of you, if I did not feel grateful for it. Though diffident of my ability to do justice to the station, I throw myself at once upon ved that an executive Committee of the Democratic your generous indulgence.

Fortunately for us, the Democratic party can boast of many honored members, who stand ready and able to bear your standard aloft in the hotlest of the fight at your command, yet we have no ambitious aspirants to distract the harmony of our councils. So too of our principles. While we have no old ones to repudiate because they have been found to be unpopular, we have no new ones to announce merely for popular effect. In this way North Carolina gets her just and equal share, and it is the only way she ever will do it. But did the whigs, when in power, ever propose to give North Carolina her just and equal share of the public lands? Nothing like it-the very reverse-they offered her a stepson's portion. By the Bill of 1841 they gave to each of the new States 500,000 acres of the public domain, and 12 per cent, over and above what was to be given to North Carolina, and even that insulting portion was snatched from her by these same whigs, that they might lay upon her greater and additional burthens.
